TO YOU FROM ME

Many years ago on an occasion similar to this I remember quoting from I know not where "Success is a milestone on the highroad of achievement; the end of the journey lies ever beyond." Well, here we are at another milestone, the arrival at which we can afford to take some pride. A thousand productions on a minute stage in a small theatre and a comparatively small town is no mean feat. For myself I take little credit. Had I been allowed to decide our fate we should have shaken the dust of Folkestone from our feet after the first disastrous season in 1929. It was the first-named author of the play we now present whose stubborn courage brought us back in 1930 and who has trodden the long road of more than half a lifetime with me and contributed so much to our success in every sphere of the work over the years.

In these pages you will find a record of the thousand productions and a few of the names that span our thirty-four seasons. Of the artists let it be said that there are many hundreds more who have helped to weave the pattern through the years and who are equally worthy of mention if space permitted.

This souvenir programme is a record of the past and today it is safer to look back than to look forward. I do not wish to make a celebration the occasion for an obituary but the future is fraught with danger and the end of the journey is more predictable. The omens are there for all to see. Peter Walter, who for many years made his valuable contribution as a Director of this Company, has felt compelled, and who shall blame him, to seek greater security in other fields of activity. I myself had proposed to be with you and play a part in this production, and it is a very real disappointment to me that I cannot do so. But one must be practical and, although half a sixpence may not seem a large sum of money it is more than the rewards of repertory management today!

Increasingly each year we have to look to the summer months to carry the financial burden of ever lessening support we receive during the Spring, Autumn and Winter. Ichabod is a sad lonely word which now applies to many of the theatres in which we have played. I hope it will never be scrawled across the entrance to the Leas Pavilion. This recorded past was our responsibility and pride. Our present is in the admirably capable hands of June Wyndham Davies and the talented company working under her direction. We thank you in all sincerity for your contribution to our past and our present. The future belongs to you.
