Make Me a Widow

An interesting feature of our play this week is that Roy Purcell, who plays Paul and produces, created the part of Quinn in the original West End production of "Make Me a Widow". The play opened at the Wimbledon Theatre and was destined for a provincial tour when the Comedy Theatre fell vacant and a somewhat surprised cast found themselves opening in London rather sooner than expected on a very hot summer night in July 1964. Julian on that occasion was played by Tony Wright, star of many British films. Vivienne Martin's portrayal of Vicky was received with great critical acclaim. Previously Vivienne had a great success as Nancy in the famous musical "Oliver" and was also the star of "Matchgirls". We are sure that Jill Meer's portrayal of Vicky will be of equal interest to Folkestone audiences.

The author of this very ingenious thriller, David Ellis, is well known to television audiences for his many scripts for such favourite programmes as "Z Cars", "Dixon of Dock Green" and "Softly, Softly".

Michael Cochrane was reported to be rather apprehensive about playing Quinn, but the producer tells us he is better than the original!

One of the fascinations for audiences when they come to watch a thriller is to see if they can beat the detective to the solution. Indeed, at a curtain call for an Agatha Christie play last season one of the audience was heard to say, "I don't care what that Monsieur Poirot says, I reckon the butler did it"! Will you manage to beat the detective to it this week, or does he really know the solution?

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Next Thursday we are presenting the highly successful comedy that enjoyed a long run at the Duke of York's Theatre, "ALL FOR MARY", by Harold Brooke and Kay Bannerman.

This is ideal holiday fare relating the story of two Englishmen quarantined in a delightful French hotel where they are being looked after by an attractive young woman who has been married to both of them—and also by an astute old family "nanny" (originally played by Kathleen Harrison), whose efforts to make them behave in a proper manner lead to a great deal of very hilarious comedy.

DURING THE INTERVALS

The Theatre Bar (fully licensed) at the rear of the Stalls is open from 7.30 before the performance and during the intervals. Orders taken for drinks before 8.0 will be ready for the intervals. The Coffee Bar is open during the intervals for the sale of coffee at evening performances and tea at matinees. Snacks are also available. Ice cream, chocolates and sweets can be purchased from the attendants in the auditorium.
